Total

* These sums are not included in the total, because, as the amount of the "Total payable" is not known, and to include the balance would make the calculation incorrect.

1884 - £ 100,000 was payable by (Landlords, etc. in receipt, and £ 100,000, by receiving Tenants.
Of the sum of £ 100,000, paid according to - No. 1, £ 100,000 was paid by (Landlords, etc. in receipt, and £ 100,000, by receiving Tenants.
1885 - £ 100,000 was payable by (Landlords, etc. in receipt, and £ 100,000, by receiving Tenants.
Of the sum of £ 100,000, paid according to - No. 2, £ 100,000 was paid by (Landlords, etc. in receipt, and £ 100,000, by receiving Tenants.

The Total Amount advanced, according to the balance made to the House of Commons in March 1884, was £ 100,000. It is Amounting thus the sum of £ 100,000 which have not yet been received and clear the same results as the £ 100,000 already received, it would seem that towards the 1884 the sum the whole amount received, about 10 per cent, has been received.
On account of the £ 100,000 received in 1884, about 10 per cent, has been received, leaving a balance of £ 90,000. It is again every £ 100,000 received.
On account of the £ 100,000 received in 1885, about 10 per cent, has been received, leaving a balance of £ 90,000. It is again every £ 100,000 received.

Of the amount of £ 100,000 payable in 1884, about 10 per cent, appears to have been actually collected, leaving a balance in the pocket of £ 90,000. It is again every £ 100,000 received.
Of the amount of £ 100,000 payable in 1885, about 10 per cent, appears to have been actually collected, leaving a balance in the pocket of £ 90,000. It is again every £ 100,000 received.
